

Figure 5. The distribution of inversion karyotypes observed in the village of Banambani In Mali (west Africa). The observed distribution suggests the existence of 3 sympatric subpopulations among which gene flow is restricted or absent. These subpopulations are referred to as “chromosomal forms” and have been given the names Bamako, Savanna and Mopti forms. Adapted from Touré et al. 1998